Thinking Out Loud

By H. M. L.

It takes time to move a library off its shelves and back again. In the upheavale necessitated by refurbishing an old house (thank God without the aid of any New Deal money) books must be moved and the accumulation of a life time, makes it quite a task. The volumes must be dusted and rearranged. The histories placed on the same shelf, the poets grouped, novels in one place, travel books in another.

People are dated by the character of their libraries; far more so than by the kind the plates they wear instead of teeth. Here is a novel by E. R. Poe, for example. Nobody ever reads E. P. Poe nowadays, no one even mentions his name. But along in the nineties he was well known to "litry" people who thought well of him. He was really an evangelist who chose novel writing as medium of turning people to the Christian way of life. Yet he did not scorn the devices of adorning his lovers with all the sensuous charms of beauty, grace and strength. And in this we recognize him as a daddy of Harold Bell Wright whose lovers were always on the verge of being extremely naughty. One wished at times they would tumble into the wicked abyss and be done with it.

And long before these came the great grand daddy of all thrilling modern romances. This was East Lynne (author well forgotten) in which a saturnine, devilish hero is conquered by love and becomes at the end saccharine sweet and altogether pure. It is at least a 75 year leap from this hero, to Rhett Butler of "Gone With the Wind," but there are still vestages of the East Lynn hero and lover visible in the handsome features of Butler. How often subconscious or forgotten influences color the creation of artists!

Then there is the shelf for juvenile books, ranging from Peter Rabbit up through Scout books, and into Jack London's "Call of the Wild", and "Sea Wolfe." Just now in the Saturday Evening Post is running a biography of this socialist. who was really one of the greatest individualists of his time. Why are these two volumes on the juvenile shelf? Well, they are stories that boys, 16 to 19, love to read. True, elderly persons can still enjoy them, for we have known grand fathers who thoroughly enjoyed a game of marbles with their grandsons, or for that matter, jack straws with their granddaughters.

On the poetry shelf are two fat volumes, one of Browning and another by Tennyson. We read Browning's "Ring and the Book", years ago and the intricate, many phased excellence of that stupendously long story of a murder still leaves its imprint on a newspaper mind. The middle aged, proud, dissolute, but, for his time, extremely conventional nobleman, who neglects his young and lonely wife, until another man discovers her gentleness, sweetness, and pitiful loneliness, and then. in the manner of noble gentlemen, wreaks furious, insenstiate vengeance on his lady and his rival. The story told and retold from the point of view of the prelate, the father of the murdered wife, the various relatives of murderer and victims, and finally of the serene judge before whom the count is tried and convicted, is full of absorbing interest, revealing as it does a Shakespearean subtlety, and the deep penetration of human motives, thoughts and frailities, of Browning's genius. And by the way, whatever has become of the Browning clubs that flourished among the women folks of over a generation ago?

There is also a little leaher-bound volume by Elizabeth Barrett Browning. Sonnets from the Portuguese, which inclines us at first glance to think well of Portugal. This little volume snuggles beside the paunchy one of her beloved husband. And though read frequently the sonnets are still rare and beautiful reading, simpler, clearer as a rule, and with a finer and more direct force, often, than Robert Browning reveals. The American poets, with here and there an exceptional poem, seem to fall short of the high nobility of English masters. Chaucer, Spenser, Dryden, Shelley, Keats, Byron—we have no one whose poetic head reaches to their shoulders.

And history and biography, what of them? There is Bancroft's "Pastoral California," an entrancing book, far more enthralling than any novel; a "History of Modern Spain," written fifteen years ago that now sounds medieval. And a very old story of exploration in the Central Americas in which one is impressed with the hauteur of the explorers and servility of the natives. There is Fremont Older's story of his life, and William Allen White's "An Editor and his People," Albert Beveridge's "Life of Lincoln" in two large volumes, which we have vainly tried to read from covers to covers, but have so far failed. We confess we are not especially interested in the minutiae and the pecadillos of the Emancipator's life. Whatever pertains to love, in the conjugal sense, in the life of any man is a matter of universal interest. One often wonders if in Lincoln's life, the course of true love had been smooth and limited to conventional live-happy-ever-afterwards, instead of wedding a Xantippe to make her happy (donning a hair shirt himself), he would have attained the lofty eminence in American life and world history, that he did attain. Is suffering an element essential to greatness in human character?

This column should be headed: "Random thoughts on re-stacking a lot of books on their shelves."

RADICAL LEADS W. P. A. IN ATTACK ON GOV. MERRIAM

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 29.—The Workers' Alliance, one of the organizations which has come under the scrutiny of the Dies Congressional Committee investigating Anti-American groups, today began circulating WPA works and unemployed with a pamphetl calling for the defeat of Governor Merriam and the election of Senator Culbert Olson.

The broadside attack on Merriam is directed at the state administration of relief, particularly to the policy of giving relief to single men by placing them in relief camps. The relief camps, according to Relief Administrator Pomeroy, are madeled after the federal CCC camps where the men are rehabilitated by giving them proper food and medical attention rather than placing them on direct dole.

Appearing on the ticket with Olson are the names of Leo Gallagher, radical agitator who first made his appearance in San Francisco in the general strike of 1934 and who is running for Secretary of State. Also endorsed by the Alliance is George R. Anderson, who has represented the radical group in court proceedings and who is a candidate for superior judge.

POOL IN PARK TO CLOSE AFTER MON. HOLIDAY

The municipal pool in the Pioneers park will be closed next Monday evening for the season. It would have been closed earlier, as attendance always falls sharply with the opening of school terms, but the commission deemed it advisable to keep it open over Labor Day. Verle Gray, life guard and pool manager will remain for a few days to leave equipment stored and in good order for the opening of the pool next June.

Verle Gray reports that the attendance up till Saturday night was 2146 larger than last year up to the corresponding date. Attendance is computed on the number of those entering the pool each day. Of this attendance, Gray states, at least 25 per cent comes from out of town, Grass Valley contributing the largest proportion of visitors.

Mr. Gray today issued a notice to all those who have left their swim suits at the pool to come and get them, otherwise they will be locked up in the bath house until next season.

ANCIENT VEHICLE SOLD TO SACTO. COMMITTEE

Louis Hyman sold an old time Studebaker wagon to the Centennial Celebration committee in Sacramento in the last few days. The wagon has sat in the Hyman yard many years and when new it cost $750. It was an elegant affair drawn by two horses and Mr. Hyman drove it throughout the mountains on his trips. He conducted a mercantile store where the Grizzle and Dolan store now stands and often visited the ridge towns, North San Juan, North Bloomfield, Graniteville, and many others. He carried large sums of money on these trips and has holes bored in the hubs of his wheels where money, gold dust and nugets were concealed to prevent being robbed by bandits and thieves that had a habit of holding up, robbing and even killing people for riches. The wagon will be a historical piece and will be well preserved at Sacramento where it will be on exhibit when the Centennial opens.

DRIFTERS SPEEDED ON THEIR WAY TO CALIF.

H. "Si" Sofge, wife, and son of Willow Valley visited in Nebraska and neighboring states on a two weeks vacation, covering 4000 miles returned last week cutting their trip short two days to get back to California. They found conditions bad in Nebraska the hot dry winds burning up crops. Wheat produced two bushels to the acre; corn was a total loss. While the state advertises no pick pocket taxes, no income taxes, luxury taxes, etc., the rate is low but the people are unable to pay for homes and farms and they are being foreclosed. The situation is a gloomy one. In Utah the state cares for the needy and do not call on the federal government for assistance. Mr. Sofge stated he found how California gets the drifters. When these people arrive in a town they are given food and gas to take them on past two or three towns and the method is repeated until they are in this state.

The Business Of Relief

The business of relief is rapidly becoming the major American industry.

In the five years during which aid for the needy has been largely supported by the Federal Government and, since, the Fall of 1935, almost entirely administered by it, the number of households and persons receiving benefits is practically the same as when the Federal Government first entered the relief picture. As of March 1933, there were 5,463,000 households and 21,479,000 persons in receipt of relief. In March 1938, there were 6,544,000 households and 20,112,000 persons receiving relief benefits.

This has been the net result of an expenditure in the last five years of over 16 billion dollars for relief alone, which has produced a deficit of over 17 billion dollars and which has hiked our national debt to nearly 40 billion dollars.

Here are a few salient facts which may serve to illuminate the relief picture.

Before the 1929-32 depression, relief was regarded primarily as a matter of state and local concern and the Federal Government contributed only in the case of emergencies caused by floods, fires, earthquakes, etc.

The first New Deal contributions to relief were in the form of grants-in-aid to states through the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, the states being left to administer the type of relief (direct or work relief) best suited to their needs. Under this system the cost of relief per case, though it steadily rose, was about $30 per case or about $400 per year.

In the spring of 1935, the Federal Government took over most of the support and all of the administration of relief for people able to work and inaugurated a work relief system under the Works Progress Administration which replaced the Federal Emergency Relief Administration.

This system is the most expensive in the world, costing the taxpayer $82 per case per month or $984 a case per year. However, of this sum the reliefer gets only about $600, or 61 cents out of each relief dollar. The rest goes to materials and to support nearly 30,000 administrators, supervisors, clerks and so on, costing nearly $100,000,000 a year. Under it between 2 and 3 million persons have been supported since the of Fall of 1935. (Your Social Security money has gone to help pay for this.)

There are a number of other Federal relief agencies besides WPA. Notable among these is the Civilian Conservation Corps which provides work relief for over 300,000 young men at an average cost to the taxpayer of over $1,200 per year per man and at a total cost to date of over 2 billion dollars. Others are the National Youth Administration which provides student aid and work relief to those of school and college age which to date has cost nearly $150,000,000 and the Farm Security Administration which makes loans and grants to indigent farmers amounting so far to more than $500,000,000.

It was the Farm Security Administration which under its former name—the Resettlement Administration—built the costly "Greenbelt" communities.

A regrettable but inevitable consequence of the manner in which the Federal relief system has been administered has been the intrusion of politics into relief. It has been inevitable, first, because the entire administrative personnel of WPA and other organzations have been selected on the basis of politics instead of merit; second, because huge lump sums for relief have been handed over to the President to be spent at his discretion; and third, the allotment of relief funds to states is not conditioned on any corresponding relief contribution by the states.

In short, the President can spend as much or as little money in any state at any time as he pleases.

The result has been padded relief rolls in election years irrespective of the state of business, and the allotment of relief funds on the basis of politics instead of need. How this allotment influences votes is proved by the fact that the nine cities in which relief payments were the highest gave Mr. Roosevelt in 1936 a majority sufficient to control 223 electoral votes out of 267 necessary for his election.

More recently the WPA Administrator openly endorsed one of several Democratic candidates in a state primary and his action was approved by the President, and the Director of the National Youth Administration asked WPA workers to vote to keep their friends in power.

The Republicons, who believe in returning relief to the states to be administered through bi-partisan boards, have attempted to secure legislation outlawing political activities on the part of those administering relief. On three separate occasions, however, these attempts were voted down in the Senate through Administration pressure.—Contributed.

THIS AND THAT

By ROY GRIFFITHS DEETER

WE LOVE A PARADE: And we certainly enjoyed the one for the Sheriff Sunday night! It realy was a beaut. I had the traffic all tied up in Grass Valley, everybody out on the side walks to watch, and the city officers busy as anything you like, keeping the way clear. It was simply swell in Nevada City too, gosh it looked almost like a fourth parade! Even the guests in the County Hotel, got excited and yelled and clamored! It struck us as being a most ENTHUSIASTIC gesture, and we believe were we in Sheriff "Toby's" shoes we would feel pretty happy and proud inside. It is not every candidate who can boast such whole hearted, genuine and affectionate support from his people as was demonstrated last night.

WE HEAR SWEET MUSIC: Went to see "Tropic Holiday," the musical score of this film is really excellent, and worth sitting through the agony of gazing upon Martha Ray's amazing bosom (to say nothing of her mouth), to listen to. The bull fight scene is averagely amusing but distinctly reminiscent of an earlier and funnier erfort by Eddie Cantor. One thing about the picture irritated us profoundly, at least half a dozen times during the different scenes some of the characters would sit down to a table and a luscious bottle (at least the shape of the bottle was tempting) of wine would be placed before them, whereupon they would immediately leave the table, bent on business elsewhere! It became absolutely tantalizing. We could not help but wonder how the cafe people made any money at that rate or if it is a new type of censureship, but whatever it was it happened so often during the course of the picture that we got positively giggly over it. But anyhow, be the film what it may, the music is still GRAND.

PERSONALITIES: Mardel Kitts, the new operator at the Bret Harte Beauty Shop in Grass Valley. Mardel is well known in both towns. Harry Stewart, D. D. S. all set up for business in his beautiful new offices in Grass Valley, and really his offices are simply SWELELEGANT.

WELL w,e are off hunting, hunting for grapes, it is quite a game with our family—a case of first come, first served, and you have to crawl way in under the leaves to find the bunches you coaxed back there to be out of sight! It's a FINE thing. So, what-ho; to the Griffiths' and cheerio everybody!

30 "WARRANTS" EVERY THURSDAY

Analysis of the Principal Provisions and Effects of the Proposed Iniative Amendment to the State Constitution Entitled the California State Retirement Life Payments Act—$30 a Week for Life.

SUMMARY AND CONCLUSIONS

This Act would add a new Article to the Constitution, and repeal all conflicting sections. Principal provisions are:

1. Establishes new agency of State Government independent of Governor, Legislature, and State Courts; provides for appointment of a promoter of the plan as Administrator, and gives him extensive power to make Act effective.

2. Authorizes Administrator to print "Retirement Compensation Warrants" in dollar denominations and issue 30 or more of these a week to all California citizens 50 or older who retire from gainful occupations.

3. Provides that state and all local agencies of government must accept such "warrants" at printed face value in payment of all taxes or other obligations, thus completely destroying the taxing power and the credit of all these governmental agencies.

4. Authorizes Administrator to issue and sell 2-cent "redemption stamps." Person or employee in private industry who holds "warrants" on Thursday must purchase and affix stamp. At end of 52 weeks, when and IF $1.04 in stamp taxes have been paid into Administrator's treasury, the last recipient can redeem the "warrant" for $1.00 in lawful money.

Campaigners for the Act are telling the public that these would be "state warrants" similar to those which the state government now issues to borrow funds in anticipation of future tax revenues.

They would be nothing of the sort. The proposed warrants would not be backed by the taxing power or credit of the state government. They would not be "promissory notes" which any person or any state agency is actually obliged ever to redeem in lawful money Their only prospect of redemption would be the futile hope that every warrant would turn at least 52 times in private business transactions and that recipients will contribute $1.04 to the Administrator's fund.

Proponents of the Act are advising the public that these "warrants" will be accepted at their printed face value in lieu of money by firms and employes in private industry and that they will circulate like money.

This is not true. To business firms or employees who might be misled into accepting such "warrants" each "dollar warrant" would represent a liability, or a contingent future obligation to complete the payment of $1.04 in real money for stamps, and not on asset. They could not be deposited in banks, or credited to accounts. No person, firm, or employee in private industry can be compelled to accept such printing press "warrants" in place of money.

No piece of paper which represents greater future liabilities than future assets can have any real present value, or can circulate like money as a medium of exchange in private business transactions. Any speculative exchange value these "warrants" might have, would be artificially added to them by the fact that they are made legal tender for tax payments, or by affixing stamps.

Promoters of this Act claim that the proposed "warrants" would be "self-liquidating," that they would be redeemed out of profits from "new business" created by the addition of "new purchasing power", and thus would not impose a tax or financial loss upon anyone.

This is a fairy tale. The expenditure of a consumer's dollar at retail for goods and services never has and never will give the producers and distributors of those goods $1.04 in net profits with which to pay such a tax.

The campaigners for this Act are telling the "senior" citizens and the unemployed that its adoption will give them "economic security."

This is untrue. On the contrary, the certain and predictable effect of the adoption of this measure will be to destroy the taxing power and the credit of the state and all local agencies of government, so that they can neither collect nor borrow any lawful money, thus cutting off all real money for payment of relief, aid to the needy aged, public employees' salaries, and paralyzing every service of government.

These public revenues amount to more than $600,000,000 a year. All could be paid in worthless "warrants", purchased at a discount from the proposed recipients, or accepted in trade to be used for that purpose.

The campaigners for this measure are telling the public that "big business and banking interests" are trying to block this measure to prevent them from getting $30 a week. That is false. However well intentioned the promoters of this quick remedy may be, the blunt truth remains that it is a fraudulent hoax upon the needy and unemployed. If it is not found to be unconstitutional its adoption would do incalmulable damage to this state and to all of its citizens.

Failure to warn the public of the real danger in this unworkable proposal would be a betrayal of public trust.

MOVE TO HALT FORCE IN LABOR DISPUTES GROWS

To cooperate with the California Committee for Peace in Employment Relations, county committees are being formed throughout the state in behalf of the initiative measure to correct such labor abuses as sitdown strikes, secondary picketing, boycotting and "hot cargo" practices.

State Senator Sanborn Young, chairman of the committee, said that "in many instances farm and business groups have been joined by men with years of experience in the rank and file of organized labor, who have become tired of privation and suffering from continuous labor strife."

"More than twenty county chairmen, together with executive committees, already have accepted the responsibility of the campaign, with additional county organizations being completed daily," he announced.

Latest of the county units are Marin, Sonoma, Mendocino, Sutter, Butte and San Joaquin. This week organizations will be perfected in counties in the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys.

Senator Young said the intiative was framed in answer to protests by housewives ,farmers, business men, an dworkers—in and out of unions—against force, coercion or intimidation in labor disputes.

If the measure receives a majority vote at the November election it will become a law five days after official certification of returns.

"It means just this," he added:

"Employees are guaranteed the right to strike but there will be no more sit down strikes; no coercion or intimidation of citizens in their freeuse of highways, streets and wharves; reasonable regulation of picketing, limiting it to bonafide employees of a "struck" employer and eliminating mass picketing; reasonable regulation of the boycott, confining it to boycotts directed against an employer by bonafide employees; elimination of 'hot cargo" praceices."

War Games in Earnest?—'Peace,' Pleads Hull

1—With Europe feverishly nervous over war maneuvers, more men are under arms in Germany and Italy than at any time since 1918. Photo shows Italian soldiers at war games in Northern Italy. 2—Closer co-operation between German and Italian high commands is seen in the visit of Air Marshal Italo Balbo, left, to Berlin to inspect German airports, where he is greeted by Field Marshal Herman Goering, right. 3—Secretary of State Cordell Hull, who called on the nations of Europe to rally to the support of the creed for peace promulgated at the Pan-American conference at Buenos Aires in 1936.

A-Hunting We Will Go—Setter Pups Hope

Training "under fire" starts at an early age for the setter pups at French Lick Springs, Ind., where Phil Miller, national amateur trap shooting champion and manager of the hotel's skeet and trap fields has these eight youngsters under his tutelage. They will soon be full-fledged bird dogs, according to Miller.

When Georgia U. Honored the President

President Roosevelt dons the cap and gown with help from Dr. W. O. Hooper of the University of Georgia. The President received an LL. D. degree from the university and then addressed students in the Sanford stadium, restating the objectives of the administration, particularly as they apply to the South. From Athens he went by special train to Barnesville to participate in a celebration commemorating a rural electrification project. It was at this meeting that he urged the defeat of Sen. Walter F. George and the nomination of Lawrence Camp, who is opposing George.

Round Trip Sea Flight in 43 Hours 45 Minutes

The four-motored German monoplane Brandenburg which successfully completed a round trip flight between Berlin and New York city. The plane covered the flight from Berlin to New York in 24 hours and 51 minutes and two days later made the homeward flight from New York to Berlin in 19 hours and 55 minutes. Capt. Alfred Henke, who was assisted by a crew of three, wears a big smile over his remarkable feat. The east to west crossing was the first time in history such a feat has been accomplished. The flyers clipped 5 hours and 50 minutes from the only previous non-stop west to east crossing to Berlin. The late Wiley Post made the previous record on the first leg of his 'round the world flight in 1933. Airmen hailed the flight as one of the greatest achievements because of its clock-like precision.

'LONG LIFE A DELUSION'

$50,000 STAMP

The dream of every philatelist came true to Warren R. Du Bois of Los Angeles, Calif., when he found a stamp worth $50,000. Purchasing a collection from an estate three months ago for $300, he sorted and rearranged it, marking this one-cent blue one for sale at $3.00. Then Du Bois, examining his treasures, discovered the cancellation date of August 17, 1861, and learned that he had the only stamp of its kind in existence. A value of $50,000 has been placed on it.

STEEL MILLS AT 40 PCT. CAPACITY

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—BUSINESS—Progress is still being made, though slowly, in the nation's fight for economic recovery. Operations in America's huge steel mills last week rose to 40 per cent of capacity for the first time since November. An estimated 24,000 men were returned to work in the Ford River Rouge plant. PWA predicted that work will begin at early dates on about $800,000,000 of non-federal construction activity. Plenty of jobs there. Inventories of automobile dealers, according to Secretary of Commerce Roper, are now at the lowest point in four years. AAA officials believe that loans are now mandatory on the current cotton crop inasmuch as the price on 10 designated spot markets has fallen to 8.20 cents a pound. Looking ahead, experts of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics foresee a gradual improvement for business during the fall and the winter months.

WASHINGTON — The new Civil Aeronautics Authority begins to function here this week. Airline executives are looking for this agency to help iron out some of the problems confronting their industry. Though the airlines have experienced an amazing traffic growth, they still serve only a relatively small percentage of the people who travel around the country every day. Last year, for example, while the airlines carried 1,100,000 passengers, the railroads transported 497,300,000. Much larger planes than the present 21-passenger ships in general use on major airlines are now available. The new Douglas DC-4 now undergoing test flights on the west coast can carry 40 passengers. It is the world's largest land transport plane having a wing spread of 135 feet. Much of its equipment too qualifies as the world's "largest." Its tires, for instance, built by the B. F. Goodrich Company, stand five feet five inches, weigh 360 pounds each and contain 45 miles of tire cord. If traffic can be boosted sufficiently to warrant the use of these larger planes, real operating economies could be effected by the airlines.

A STATEMENT TO THE PUBLIC

By Arthur Hellings, candidate for County Clerk and Auditor.

It has been my greatest desire to keep my political fight in the race for office of County Clerk and Auditor clean. And that I intend to do—win, lose or draw!

A few days ago there appeared a poster, advertising a Labor Day celebration in Truckee and sponsored by the Truckee Fire Department, the Truckee Chamber of Commerce and the Committee for Industrial Organization, with members in that locality. Some of my friends, unknown to me, and with the best of intention, inserted an advertisement announcing my candidacy, on this poster. I was unaware of this until it was printed and circulated.

Apparently the appearance of the poster was used as a fine piece of material for damaging my campaign—as the poster was given to a member of the Mine Workers Protective League (of which I am a charter member in good standing) to be presented at the meeting of the Mine Workers Protective League on Thursday night. I believe the party responsible for sending the poster to be presented at the League meeting will have a sharp twinge of conscience when he reads this and realizes the defamatory nature of his act.

I explained to the Mine Workers Protective League members the facts connected with the advertisement. But for further enlightenment, both to the League members and the general public, I drove to Truckee Friday and obtained an affidavit further explaining the matter and which I believe clears the situation fully. The affidavit, is printed in full as follows:

AFFIDAVIT

D. Cabona and N. F. Dolley, Truckee, California, first being duly sworn, deposes and says:

This will certify that Arthur Hellings was unaware that an advertisement in behalf of his candidacy for County Clerk and Auditor, was ordered placed on a card printed by the CIO in cooperation with the Truckee Chamber of Commerce and the Truckee Volunteer Fire Department promoting a Labor Day celebration in Truckee on September 5, 1938.

The advertisement was put in by the writers as a friendly gesture in financing the celebration and for no other reason. It was inserted entirely without Mr. Hellings' permission or knowledge.

(Signed)
D. CABONA,
N. F. DOLLEY,
Chief of Truckee Fire Department.
